New Camp of Confederate Veteran Organized.

Elected-The Foot-Ball Team-Arranging a Match.

BLACKSBURG, VA., September 14 --(Special.)-On September the 7th the organization of a camp of Confederate Veterans was perfected here. The following (who bravely wore the gray from 1861 to 1865) were elected officers and installed: Major M. D. Bennett, commander; Captain A. C. Hardwick, first lieutenantcommander; Lieutenant D. T. Robertson, second lieutenant-commander; Byrd Anderson, third lieutenant-commander; J. C. Grissom, adjutant; Erastus Payne, quartermaster; J. H. Slusser, sergeant major; J. C. Price, treasurer; Dr. J. H. Otey, surgeon; Rev. G. T. Gray, chaplain; William T. Price, officer of the day; J. B. Rutledge, vidette; Thomas J. Henderson, color-sergeant; A. L. Hawkins, first guard; George T. Bruce, second guard. The camp was named the Johnathan B. Evans Camp. A second meeting will be held on the first Saturday in October to adopt a constitution and by-laws. The above list of officers contains several gray-haired men who hear more than one scar in token of their valor on many a hard-fought field. A great deal of interest and enthustasm was shown, and the organization promises to be a most flourishing one.

Mr. Olinger, while taking a walk a few days since, found on Palmer's Hill a highland terrapin, with "C. L. B., 1874," carved in large, and still very legible, letters on its back. It would seem from the appearance and position of the letters that old Brer Terrapin, was fully as large when the letters were cut as he was when captured. It is sad, however, to have to relate that the old gentleman met with an ignominous fate. He was deposited in a nail-keg in the hardware-store for safe-keeping. Some time afterwards a countryman called for twenty pounds of nails. The merchant, not knowing that the distinguished gentleman occupied the keg, poured out the nails on top of him, and the countryman carried off the terrapin, nails and all. No carried off the terrapin, nails and all. No little conjecture has been indulged in as to whose initials the C. L. B. are. It is possible that they may be those of one is possible that they may be those of one of the family of Dr. Roggs, who was at that time one of the professors in the college. This recalls the longevity of the terrapin. They live to a very great age, and there is a well-authenticated case of one in Ceylon that is several hundred years old.

ARE BACK AGAIN,

President John M. McBride, his daughter, Miss Susie, and his sister-in-law, Miss Bolton, have returned from quite an extended northern tour. Their stay North was delightful in every respect, and the Doctor is much the better in health for the much-needed rest from his burdensome duties in the college.

The foot-ball team continues its daily practice under the direction of Mr. James, who has thoroughly won the confidence of the boys, and has evinced the qualities of a magnificent trainer.

They finally selected a magnificent farm in the Blue-Grass region of Kentucky, consisting of 600 acres, for which £2,000 cash was paid. Mr. Simpson is a splendid young man, and it was very much hoped that he would find what he wished in the Valley or Southwest Virginia. He has been very fortunate in securing as his foreman Mr. Heavener, who was Professor Alwood's manager in the practical work of the experiment station. Mr. Heavener left on yesterday to join Mr. Simpson.

On Tuesday morning the wedding bells rang merrily out on the air of our town. The occasion was the marriage of Miss Kate Kipps, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Kipps, to Mr. R. L. Fogg, of John H. Kipps, to Mr. R. L. Fogg, of Cambria, an employee of the Norfolk and Western railway. The couple were mar-ried at 9 o'clock A. M. by the Rev. G. Dorsey White, of Christiansburg, assisted by the Rev. W. L. Dolly, of Blacksburg. They immediately took the midday train for Richmond, Norfolk, and other points. The bride is very youthful, being but II years of age, and the groom is 26. The couple will make Cambria their future home.

The cool nights and mornings of September have turned the thoughts of the visitors homeward. Those who remain are generally from the far South, and ten days more will find the gay ball-room and the fayorite nodes and corners where the favorite nooks and corners, where "soft eyes spake love to eyes that spake again," as lonely as if they had never known the bright and tender scenes of a

Montgomery county will have a fair this fail. This was definitely decided on a few days back. The fair will take place the first part of October, and be held in the southern part of the county.

Mr. C. B. McDonald, the popular nominee for the House of the Democratic party of Montgomery, is diligently at work, and is daily making friends. He is a resident of Blacksburg District, and a graduate of this college, and the people here hope to see him roll up the handsomest Democratic majority that the county has given in years. The Republicans have not shown their hand yet, but it is said that Mr. McDonaid being a farmer, they feel themselves forced to shelve some gentiemen who would very farmer, they feel themselves forced to shelve some gentlemen who would very willingly serve the party, and that they, too, will nominate a farmer in the person

The writer was recently visiting in Yazoo City, Miss. A prominent attorney of the town, Mr. Thomas H. Campbell, drove him out to the City Cemetery. Here he saw two graves that interested him very much. Side by side, and covered with two large, flat marble stones, the burder lobn. covered with two large, flat marble stones, lie buried John H. and George Mason Hancock, both grandsons of the signer of the Declaration of Independence. They went to Yazoo with the intention of settling there, contracted yellow-fever in the famous epidemic of 1875, and both died. I was not able to ascertain the name of the father, but this may be an interesting bit of personal or historical information to some of the Dispatch's numerous readers.
